

PICTURES CHRIST STILL IN MIDST OF GROPING MEN

Jesus is Waiting to Reveal
Himself to the Perplexed,
Says Rev. Gardiner.

At St. Paul's Methodist church Sunday morning Rev. James L. Gardiner, D.D., preached on the subject "Christ in the Midst," his sermon being based on John, 20:26. "The doors being shut, then came Jesus and stood in the midst," he said. "The Bible," said Dr. Gardiner, "is the most unique book in the world. It is the only book that tells the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. The ancient or modern biographer in depicting his hero speaks only of his virtues. The Bible, however, describes not only the virtues but the faults of its hero. The Bible, too, is unique in another sense. It is unique in the fact that it is the only book that pictures God in search of man. Turn to the Old Testament and you will find that at the very opening of its pages God is in search for man. When Adam sinned, God came with the question, 'Adam, where art thou?' Turn to the New Testament and you will find that Jesus is always pictured as being in search for men. He came to seek and to save that which was lost."

In the midst of the world, Jesus is being in the midst of folks. He is always near those who need Him most. Where was Christ born? Where could Christ be born? There was but one place, and that was in the midst of the world's crowded and disadvantaged people. There in the midst of the world's toilers, the Christ child was born. "Our text pictures Jesus as being in the midst of the perplexed disciples. You will remember the circumstances under which the words of the text were uttered. Jesus had risen from the dead and had been seen by ten of the disciples, but Thomas doubted. Then, eight days after the resurrection, when the ten disciples had met with Thomas behind closed doors, suddenly Jesus stood in their midst and Thomas recognized Him as his Lord. "Christ still stands in the midst of folks who are perplexed. He still stands in the midst of those who are groping their way to the great fact of the deity and divinity of our Lord. He still stands waiting to reveal Himself unto every man who would know the truth. God grant that we may see Him and hear His voice as He speaks to the troubled heart. 'Peace be unto you.'"

ANTI-SHINE ORDER HELD UP BY KLINE

Acts on Advice of City Attorney That Ordinance Has Some Flaw.

Orders from the police department designated to remove all shoe-shine stands from the sidewalks of the city which were to have been put into effect Labor day are apparently held up, it was learned today, on hearing of Chief of Police Kline's order going out to have the stands removed. City Atty. Slick, it appears, has arisen to the occasion and claims there is a technical flaw or irregularity in the ordinance which the chief proposes carrying into effect and from which the chief had his orders. On the recommendations of the city attorney, Chief Kline, accordingly to word from him Sunday, will hold up the order pending action by the common council which meets Tuesday night, at which time the ordinance will be re-submitted and corrected. What technicality in the ordinance, which orders the sidewalk stands cleared of fruit stands as well as shoe shine stands, is in need of correction, was not indicated by Chief Kline Sunday.

New Philosophy is Tires Worth More Than Cars

Thieves Take Jontz Machine,
But Keep Wheel Equipment Only.

According to the philosophy as demonstrated in practice by one eccentric thief, the recent price slumping of Ford automobiles have made the tires with which they are equipped more valuable than the machines.

Saturday night, Joseph W. Jontz, 109 W. Eighth st., Mishawaka, parked his Ford coupe near the Tio dance pavilion. After waiting "Home Sweet Home" he and his companions left the hall to motor home. But the car was gone.

At about the same time Jontz appeared at police headquarters to report the loss of his car, a telephone call came in from the thief saying that a coupe was standing in the middle of the road on the Edwardsburg road, four miles outside the city. The informant also stated that the car was without tires.

A detail of police went out to secure the car and tow it to town. Wagonmaster Nick Zankowski, who headed the detail, lassoed a rope to the stalled automobile and climbed into the seat. It was on a stretch of dirt road and it was too rough riding for Nick. He ordered Vera, who was at the wheel to drive into a farm house lane and park the car for the night.

Jontz and his party waited, for the description of the lost car had answered to his own. After the return of the detail to the station with the report of the "hired" car, the Mishawaka called for a taxi to be driven home.

The thieves who had abandoned the car had stripped the car of an extra rim and tire. Further examination also showed the primer on the motor head also had been removed.

SEES INDUSTRIAL AUTOCRACY DOOMED IN WEST VIRGINIA

Rev. Beck Predicts Miners
Victory—Rev. Rodgers
Calls Work Godlike.

be ashamed to do what our Lord Jesus has done. "Noblest Work Serving Christ. "Labor is Godlike, for it is a characteristic of Godlike men and women. I care not what age or clime you may choose, Godlike men have been men of labor. We may begin with Noah and the Patriarchs and study the history of the Godly kings and the Prophets, the Apostles of the New Testament and early disciples such as Paul and Barnabas and without exception we find them to have been men of action, men of labor.

"With but few exceptions the best men and women of today are the best. Friends let us follow the example and guidance of our Lord and Master who said: 'I must work, for the Father that sent me while it is day.' Yes, let us be Godlike.

"The noblest work in this world is the service of Jesus Christ, for thereby you labor for the things that perish not. In such a work we all may have a part. Let us follow the example of him who said, 'My Father worketh even until now, and I work.' Follow the lowly carpenter, always remembering Christ at the carpenter's bench was greater than he was who swayed Caesar's sceptre and if Christ had aspired to sit on Caesar's throne he could never have been the Christ, for the only road from this earth to heavenly glory is through the valley of humiliation and labor."

"Christ Honored Work"—Beck.

"The question 'Is not this Jesus the Carpenter?' grew out of the feeling that they had seen him working. 'That a carpenter could not do such wonderful works as Jesus was doing. Such things would be more appropriately done by a king, a scholar or some other great one. In interpreting Jesus to the world since that day there has been a tendency to make Him a king instead of showing that He was a carpenter. He was born of royalty. He was not reared in royalty. He did not use authority, force and wealth to perform His work. He was a member of a humble carpenter's family, humbly born and humbly reared. He learned the carpenter's trade and worked at it for years. When he set out on His great life work He began as a humble man and wrought out the plans for His new world with a meek and humble citizen."

"That fact gave Him a point of contact with the common people. They heard Him gladly. He could always say, 'Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest.' He had today the laboring people's best friend. He alone of all their advisers has a place of rest to offer them. He has a new era for them."

Jesus the Carpenter honored work. He taught that it was a blessing. Some have taught that God rested after the six days of creation Jesus says, 'We worked with Him and I work.' As another has said: 'Our God is a workingman's God and the Christian religion was founded by a workingman.' The first disciples left no place for the church for idlers. The apostle Paul commanded that all should work and eat of their own bread. Those who refused to work were to be expelled from the church. He taught that God's ownership of all wealth and man's stewardship of whatever he might possess. He taught the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of all mankind. He taught that it is a blessing to be poor, that men are greater power than force; that men are all alike precious to God; that men are better than any other wealth. Industrial Democracy Coming.

"Not at a late day the struggle for industrial liberty is coming to the front. The old industrial order is passing. We are getting new wine skins for the new wine. If we think the struggle is a bit hard take a look backward at the struggle for religious liberty; then look at the struggle for political liberty of which we have just closed the last chapter. In the light of this history we may congratulate ourselves that we have gotten thus far with little violence as we have had."

"War has hastened this victory. All the world fought political autonomy. The hideous monster was put down. Democracy was exalted after the war we discovered that industrial autocracy

ROAD TO FURTHER NEGOTIATIONS WITH BRITISH LEFT OPEN

Text of Irish Rejection of Lloyd George's Proposals
Made Public.

They are not an invitation to Ireland to enter into a free and willing partnership with the free nations of the British Commonwealth. They are an invitation to Ireland to enter in the guise of, and under conditions which determine a status definitely inferior to that of these free states.

Others Guaranteed. "Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand all are guaranteed against domination of the United States, and only by acknowledged constitutional rights which give them equality of status with Great Britain and absolute freedom from the control of the British parliament, but by the thousands of miles which separate them from Great Britain, Ireland would have no such guarantee of distance and of right. The conditions sought to be imposed would divide her into two artificial states, each destructive of the other's influence in any common council, and both subject to military, naval and economic control by the British government."

"The main historical and geographical facts are not in dispute, but your government insists upon viewing them from your standpoint and we must be allowed to view them from ours. The history you interpret as dictating union we read as dictating separation. Our interpretation of the fact of geographical proximity is no less diametrically opposed. We are convinced that ours is the true and just interpretation and as proof we submit that a neutral and impartial arbitrator should be the judge. You refuse and threaten to give effect to your views by force. Our reply must be that if you adopt that course we can only resist as generations before us have resisted. Force will not solve the problem and it will never secure the ultimate victory over reason and right. "If you again resort to force and if victory be not on the side of justice, the problem that confronts us will confront our successors. The fact that for 750 years the problem has resisted solution by force is evidence and warning sufficient. It is true wisdom therefore, and true statesmanship, not any false idealism, that prompts me and may prompt you to seek a peaceful solution. The dictates of force must be set aside. They must be set aside from the beginning as well as actual conduct of the negotiations."

Arrest Follows Daybreak Entry to Adopted Home

Nickelich Climbs in Window
—Slumber Disturbed—Batteries Cache Found.

Because he waited until after daybreak to enter his adopted domicile, Peter Nickelich, is cooling his heels in the city jail to face Judge Omaha in city court Tuesday morning on charges of grand larceny. Found in a room of the old "Greek club," over 117 E. Jefferson Blvd., where he was arrested asleep on an improvised bed of his own making, were seven automobile storage batteries, when Nickelich is alleged to have stolen.

While Nickelich was effecting his entry through a back window on the second floor of the building William Albertson, 127 1-2 S. St. Joseph st., stood at his back window and watched the proceeding. Albertson notified the police that he had witnessed a man climb into the building through a back window and a detail was sent to investigate.

Nickelich was found already in bed and asleep. He was routed out and requested to explain the ownership of the batteries found on the floor in the room he had occupied for his home. Unwilling to explain, he was removed to a cell in the city jail to think it over.

The owners of the stolen batteries are being sought by the police.

Cody Continues to Delight Crowds at the Blackstone

Movie Star's Ambition as Youth to Go on Stage Approved by Father.

Lew Cody, who is appearing in person at the Blackstone for the final time today, continued to delight the crowds at the theater Sunday as a high class entertainer.

This movie star is a "Down East Yank," being born in Waterville, Maine, of French descent—the high spots of his education were had at McGill college in Montreal, Can. and at Princeton university. His parents more than did Cody. The most interesting part of his college career was the annual show given by the school and which of course he played the leading man. So after several attempts to master the art of medicine he finally gave it up to take up his chosen field of that of the stage. Contrary to all laws and customs when he approached his father and told him of his desires, the elder Cody instead of ordering him out of the office, promised to give him a start in that profession. The next day, Cody Jr., was on his way to New York to enter one of the large dramatic schools.

Then came several years on the stage in large productions and in the best school of all dramatic stock. The name of Lew Cody was known from coast to coast long before he entered the moving picture field. Cody is in a position to put his ideal for the silent drama into practice and material shape for he is not only an actor but also producer and author of the plays in which he has appeared in recently, including "The Broken Butterfly," "A Dangerous Pastime," "The Beloved Cheater," and "Occasionally Yours."

He has been referred to as the screen's greatest lover and as the screen's Beau Brummell, but always as one of the most finished actors the screen possesses. In private life he is an outdoor sportsman and is interested in every branch of the sports world. He numbers as his closest associates and pals such well known figures as Jack Dempsey, Benny Leonard, Barney Oldfield, Babe Ruth, Strangler Lewis and many others. His home in Hollywood is the stamping ground for all athletes who ever took a shower. He gives his corn beef and cabbage dinner to them.

Even Mourning Styles Change, Says Traveler

Gotham Tourist Reports Noticing Trend to Everyday Dress for Bereaved.

"Style changes everything, even the manner of mourning for the dead,"

This is the opinion held by G. F. Nelson, New York manufacturer, in South Bend Sunday on his return home from a motor trip to the Pacific coast. Nelson explains that this conviction came repeatedly under his observation during his journey through various states, and that whereas black was once the color worn by those bereaved, other colors are now taking its place, particularly in the middle-west centers.

"In fact," he continued, "there is no question but that black is simply going out of style as mourning wear. The new idea appears to be anything but to get away from the somber; to keep away from what is commonly called deep mourning; to change far as color is concerned, as little the every day method of dress, so far as possible. It is an uncommon sight in many places to see persons don black garments after some one near and dear to them has passed into the shadow of the valley of death. It is apparent that it is a thing of the past. The world, at least the new world, is getting away from long drawn out periods of sighs and tears. And, this, to my mind, is the proper method."

Declaring it took the world a long time to learn the lesson, Nelson went on "that it is being gradually abandoned primitive custom, it was only necessary to break away from this cessary for progressive folks to take the initiative, which was largely because of commercial reasons. Men have found out dressed in black from head to foot they could not do business as well as when they were attired in light seasonal, nobby clothes."

"Our modern age is being blamed for introducing a lot of innovations, but even the hypercritical must admit that there is a great deal of common sense in back of some of the changes. We are beginning to stifle from one life to another. If, look upon death as merely a transition, as we are told by the moralists and others, the transition takes us into a better sphere, why should those left behind we mourn because we are gone? It seems to me they should rejoice instead of grieve."
